Re: Elberta Bernice Lieberman v. State of Delaware, et al
D.Del., C.A. Number 94-523-GMS

Dear Mr. McNally:

Pursuant to your request, I have completed my forensic psychiatric evaluation of Elberta Bernice Lieberman, a fifty-eight-year-old woman, who has filed suit against the State of Delaware claiming disability discrimination, retaliation and a failure to provide requested accommodations in the workplace. The purpose of this evaluation was to assess her psychiatric condition at the time that she was placed on permanent disability in 1994 and to determine whether she could have returned to work if reasonable and proper accommodations had been provided.

In accordance with the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, Rule 26, I have enclosed a copy of my Curriculum Vitae, which includes all of my professional activities, publications and presentations, and a case list of all occasions on which I have testified as an expert, either in trial or in deposition, within the proceeding four years. In addition, I am being compensated at the rate of $400.00 for all time spent in the evaluation of Ms. Lieberman and at the hourly rate of $500.00 per hour if I am called upon to testify either in Court or in deposition.

In order to complete my evaluation, I reviewed numerous documents provided to me by your office and Ms. Lieberman, including the following:

1. Records of Jay Weisberg, M.D.;
2. Records from the Board of Pension Trustees for State Employees Pension Plan;
3. Records of George Wohlreich, M.D.;
4. Records from the Family Court of the State of Delaware;
5. Records from the Institute of Pennsylvania Hospital;
6. Records of Michael Guarino, M.D.;
7. Records of Marian Droba, M.D.;
8. Records of Jane Mathisen, M.D.;
9. Records of Allen Gruenberg, M.D.;
10. Records of Lynn Erb, Ph.D.;

11. Deposition of Bernice Lieberman on November 8, 2004 and June 10, 2005;
12. First Amended Complaint;
13. Mediation case load;
14. Performance evaluations of Bernice Lieberman;
15. Attachment II to Disability Report to the Social Security Administration dated January 31, 1995 concerning Ms. Lieberman's basic duties at Family Court; and,
16. Vocational analysis by Daniel M. Rappucci, M.A., L.R.C., L.P.C., C.R.C.

In addition to reviewing the previously noted materials, I examined Ms. Lieberman in my Timonium, Maryland office on October 10, 2005 for four hours and fifty minutes, and on October 17, 2005 for three hours and fifteen minutes. As part of my evaluation, I administered the Trauma Symptom Inventory (TSI), the Millon Clinical Multiaxial Inventory-III (MCMI-III) that was interpreted by Theodore Millon, Ph.D., D.Sc. and the Minnesota Multiphasic Personality Inventory-2 (MMPI-2) that was interpreted by Alex Caldwell, Ph.D. I also spoke by telephone with Ms. Lieberman's treating psychiatrist, Neil Schecker, M.D., on October 19, 2005 for twenty minutes.

At the onset of the evaluation, I advised Ms. Lieberman as to the nature and purpose of the evaluation, that we did not have a doctor-patient relationship, that the information we discussed would be used by me to render opinions in her legal case, that I might be called upon to prepare a report and/or testify in her case and, therefore, the information we discussed was not confidential. Ms. Lieberman understood this warning and consented to proceed with the evaluation.

Elberta Bernice Lieberman was born on April 23, 1947 and was fifty-eight years old at the time of the evaluation. Ms. Lieberman is single and denied having any children. She was the oldest of her mother's five children. Her next younger sister died at the age of twenty-three months in 1951 as a result of acute peritonitis. Her next younger brother died in 1999 at the age of forty-seven as a result of cancer. Her parents' marriage was their first and only marriage. Both of her parents are deceased, with her father dying in 1989 as a result of pneumonia and her mother dying in 1992 also as a result of pneumonia. Ms. Lieberman reported a family history of depression in her mother and autism in her nephew. She also reported a family history of alcoholism in her maternal grandfather and three maternal uncles and a history of substance abuse in two of her brothers.

The plaintiff was born in Brooklyn, New York but lived in the Bronx until the age of two, when she moved to the suburban Wilmington, Delaware area. She denied being aware of any difficulties in her mother's pregnancy with her. She reached her developmental milestones at the appropriate times and denied any childhood history of bedwetting, firesetting, cruelty to animals or temper tantrums.

Ms. Lieberman described an emotionally and physically abusive relationship with her mother. Many of her memories of the abuse came into her conscious awareness during the course of mental health treatment over the last ten years. However, she does have direct memories of physical and verbal abuse by her mother, which are confirmed by her siblings. Ms. Lieberman had a closer relationship with her father and did not have any direct memories of abuse by him, although she has recently "recovered" memories of abuse.

Although Ms. Lieberman's parents were Jewish, they joined the Pentecostal Church, exposing Ms. Lieberman and her siblings to regular group meetings where the participants spoke in tongues. Ms. Lieberman noted that she left the Pentecostal Church at the age of seventeen.

Ms. Lieberman initially attended parochial school for first through fourth grade and then again in sixth grade, while attending public schools for the remainder of her school years. She graduated from high school in June, 1964, after which she attended the University of Delaware, from which she graduated in June, 1968. She noted that she worked and received grants and loans during her college years and that she majored in psychology. She attended an experimental psychology graduate program at C.W. Post University for one year, did well but dropped out of the program for financial reasons. In 1972, she attended a graduate program in experimental psychology at the University of Delaware for somewhat more than one semester but dropped out of that program.

Ms. Lieberman's work experience included various sales jobs during high school and college, as well as working part-time during the school year and full-time during the summers from 1969 until 1974 at the Delaware State Hospital. From 1969 until 1972, she also worked at the Terry Children's Psychiatric Center, as well as driving a schoolbus following her discontinuation of graduate school. She noted that she became a trainee at the Delaware Family Court on February 16, 1974 and progressed to various positions within the court system. She noted that she last worked on October 28, 1994 and was granted permanent disability on February 1, 1995. She noted that she currently receives a pension from the State of Delaware, as well as Social Security Disability Income.

Ms. Lieberman denied having any direct memories of being sexually abused as a child. She did have several serious relationships in the distant past, although she denied any serious involvements with men since 1981. During the course of her more recent therapy, she reported recovered memories of sexual abuse by a variety of different individuals.

Ms. Lieberman reported first receiving mental health treatment on an outpatient basis at the age of seventeen, when she was attending the University of Delaware. At that time, she felt depressed and suicidal. She related her difficulties to problems leaving home and difficulties with her roommate. She denied receiving any medication and remained in outpatient psychotherapy for two months.

After graduating from University of Delaware, Ms. Lieberman again engaged in outpatient individual psychotherapy as a result of difficulties with depression. She recalled at that time being prescribed the antidepressant Elavil and being hospitalized for the first time for one week sometime in 1968.

When she returned to Delaware in August, 1969, she sought individual and group psychotherapy on an outpatient basis and noted that she has consistently remained in psychotherapy since that time. She noted that she saw several different therapists prior to her hospitalization at Wilmington Hospital in July, 1981. Ms. Lieberman noted that, at the time of her admission, she had difficulty sleeping and eating, experienced racing thoughts and found herself to be very creative, as well as self-destructive. She was subsequently transferred to the Rockford Center, where she remained for two months. She noted that she was diagnosed at that time with Manic Depressive Psychosis which later was termed Bipolar Disorder.

Ms. Lieberman stated that she was treated from July, 1981 until 1987 by Jay Weisberg, M.D., during which time she underwent psychiatric hospitalizations at the Rockford Center, Wilmington Hospital and the Institute of Pennsylvania Hospital. She noted that her primary symptoms related to depression with suicidal ideation.

Ms. Lieberman was next treated by Doctor Wohlreich at the Institute of the University of Pennsylvania Hospital in 1987, at which time she was diagnosed with Bipolar Disorder and Borderline Personality Disorder. After several months, her care was transferred to Nancy Becker, M.D., whom she continued to see over the next 4½ years. During this time, she recalled several inpatient hospitalizations at the Institute. Ms. Lieberman noted that she briefly treated with Doctor Donna Cotzen at the Institute, after which she was treated by Doctor Jane Mathisen for 2½ years, until April, 1994. She underwent a psychiatric evaluation by Doctor Allen Gruenberg, who was the first mental health professional to make a diagnosis of Dissociative Disorder. She was next treated by various other psychiatrists at the Institute, with her treatment focusing largely on dissociative issues and depression.

Ms. Lieberman stated that she has not received inpatient treatment since 1995. She is currently under the care of Neil Schecker, M.D. and carries diagnoses of Dissociative Identity Disorder, Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder, Inattentive Type and Depression. Currently, her medications include the antidepressants Effexor, 300 mg. in the morning and Lexapro, 20 mg. in the morning, Ritalin, 20 mg. in the morning, 20 mg. in the early afternoon and 20 mg. in the later afternoon for her Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder and the anti-anxiety medication Klonopin, 0.25 mg. at bedtime.

A review of Ms. Lieberman's mental health records reveals that her inpatient treatment has generally been precipitated by severe depression with suicidal ideation. There are some reports of prior manic episodes and many notations that when her depression is severe, she is unable to perform gainful employment. Prior diagnoses have included Major Depressive Disorder, Dysthymic Disorder, Bipolar Disorder, Borderline Personality Disorder, Social Phobia, Somatization Disorder, Dissociative Identity Disorder, Dissociative Disorder Not Otherwise Specified and Attention-Deficit/Hyperactivity Disorder, Inattentive Type. Over the years, she has been treated with various mood stabilizers, antidepressants and antipsychotic medications.

Ms. Lieberman's medical history is significant for a history of osteoarthritis, irritable bowel syndrome, hypothyroidism, for which she takes Synthroid, 0.1 mcg. every day, and breast cancer, for which she had a right breast lumpectomy with removal of nodes, after which she underwent radiation and chemotherapy in 1988. She denied any recurrence of her cancer. She also reported taking medication to lower her cholesterol level, as well as suffering from fibromyalgia, chronic venous insufficiency, secondary hyperparathyroidism and urinary incontinence.

According to the job description in Ms. Lieberman's report to the Social Security Administration, from June 1, 1989 until October 28, 1994, she served as a mediation/arbitration officer for the Delaware Family Court. She stated, "Primarily mediated custody, visitation, guardianship and child support petitions to see if they could be resolved by parties. Conducted child support calculations. Wrote and typed on an IBM-compatible computer the agreed-upon Court Orders resolving those petitions without a judicial hearing, referred cases for judicial hearings, and/or recommended intervisitation Orders and prepared child support cases for interim Orders by the Masters."

Ms. Lieberman acknowledged that after she was transferred to the Mediation Unit in 1989, she had difficulty keeping up with the paperwork. She noted that in the beginning of 1993, she had a meeting with her supervisors focusing on this issue which ultimately led to her staying later in order to make up for her slower pace. She stated that she made efforts to decrease her distractions and she felt that she was getting more caught up with the paperwork. She further stated that in 1993 and 1994, she hoped to obtain an accommodation from her employer so that she could attend therapy sessions twice a week as were prescribed and make up for her lost time either during her lunch hour, working later on Fridays or modifying her work schedule so that she could work after hours so she could catch up on her paperwork. She stated that she felt her supervisor was not providing adequate supervision or support, which was further exacerbating her stress and depression. She stated that when she was ultimately told that, because of her attendance and the backlog in her work, her supervisors were deciding whether she should be terminated, she became increasingly depressed, was psychiatrically hospitalized and, in fear of being terminated, filed for a disability retirement. She noted that despite her prior history of mental health problems and psychiatric hospitalizations, she had always been able to improve to the point where she could return to work.

As a result of my forensic psychiatric evaluation, it is my opinion, to a reasonable degree of medical certainty, that in 1994, Elberta Bernice Lieberman was suffering from the following mental disorders:

1. Major Depressive Disorder, Recurrent (DSM-IV-TR: 296.3), and,
2. Personality Disorder Not Otherwise Specified with Dependent, Histrionic, Dissociative, Obsessive-Compulsive and Self-Defeating Traits (DSM-IV-TR: 301.9).

Ms. Lieberman's primary psychiatric difficulties have revolved around her Major Depressive Disorder which, over the years, has varied in intensity from Severe, Without Psychotic Features to being In Partial Remission. When her depression is in a severe state, she would have difficulty focusing, concentrating, paying attention and completing her work in a reasonable and timely fashion. With adequate outpatient treatment, however, the severity of Ms. Lieberman's depression was generally kept in the mild to moderate range, compatible with an ability to function in the work setting, especially if provided with appropriate accommodations. Although she would be unable to function in the work setting when her depression was severe and she required psychiatric hospitalizations, such hospitalizations were quite effective in significantly lessening her degree of depression, after which she had always been able to return to work.

Although I am aware that Ms. Lieberman has been diagnosed with a variety of other psychiatric disorders, including, most recently, Dissociative Identity Disorder, it is my opinion, to a reasonable degree of medical certainty, that her primary, potentially incapacitating, disorder is her Major Depression, coupled with her underlying personality disturbance.

It is my further opinion, to a reasonable degree of medical certainty, that as of Ms. Lieberman's last day of employment on October 28, 1994, with proper accommodations, Ms. Lieberman could have returned to her position with the Delaware Family Court and functioned adequately in that capacity. Appropriate and reasonable accommodations would include allowing her to attend her twice-weekly therapy sessions, allowing her the flexibility of making up her work during lunch hours, on Friday afternoons or during other hours of the day and receiving considerably more emotional support by her supervisors. It appears that a major exacerbating factor leading to the deterioration in her level of functioning was the ongoing conflict and criticism with the threat of termination by her supervisors.
